N'Goné Fall ARCHIVES AS TOOLS TO RECLAIM BIASED HISTORIES

2025 marks the 140th anniversary of the Berlin Conference, a three-month series of discussions that organised and regulated the division of the African continent. What have the consequences been of this conference, which gave European countries—under the guise of a civilising mission—the right to legitimise the occupation of foreign lands, and get hold of all their resources and cultural artefacts? The restitution of cultural objects, a hot topic in 2021, is becoming a whisper stifled by Western countries who refuse to acknowledge their moral and financial debt. Museums, once temples celebrating a country's power, now highlight the evidence of the contested centuries-old cultural domination game. How are curators and creative groups using archives to challenge official narratives and a Western-centric history of the world?

The lecture will be in English. Entry is free and limited to the number of seats available.

N'Goné Fall (Senegal, 1967) is an independent curator and cultural policies specialist. She was lecturer at the Michaelis School of Fine Art (South Africa, 2017) and at the Abdou Moumouni University (Niger, 2018), and a professor at the Senghor University (Egypt, 2007–2011). She was the editorial director of Revue Noire (France, 1994–2001) and edited books on contemporary visual arts and photography in Africa including An Anthology of African Art: The Twentieth Century, Photographers from Kinshasa (2002). Besides many other exhibitions and events, N'Goné Fall was the General Commissioner of Africa2020 Season (France, 2020–2021), co-curated the Bamako Encounters (Mali, 2001) and was a guest curator at the Dakar Biennale (Senegal, 2002). She is a member of the scientific committee of AWARE (France) and on the board of ART X Lagos (Nigeria), Contemporary And (Germany), the Lagos Biennial (Nigeria), the Nesr Foundation (Angola), the Center for Creative Arts (South Africa). She was a member of the Finding Committee in charge of selecting the artistic director for documenta 16 (Germany, 2027).
